Reader's Advisory:

The Image Collections and Fieldwork Archives (ICFA) of Dumbarton Oaks now includes additions to the online exhibit: The Nicholas V. Artamonoff Collection - <http://icfa.doaks.org/collections/artamonoff/>

The Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery Archives of the Smithsonian Institution has generously allowed the sharing of 477 photographs by Nicholas V. Artamonoff through ICFA's online exhibit. These images, taken primarily in Istanbul, capture Ottoman monuments, cityscapes, and people and daily life in the city. They portray the historical and cultural heritage of a 1930s and 1940s Istanbul that is now much changed. The photographs also include images of other Turkish cities, including: Bergama, Bursa, Izmir, Selçuk, and Yalova. This material is being incorporated into the Nicholas V. Artamonoff Collection website. In bringing these two pieces of the same oeuvre together digitally, Dumbarton Oaks believes a more complete understanding of Artamonoff's photographic interests and artistic style has been achieved.

The online exhibit now includes all 1,019 Artamonoff photographs, along with 124 photos that are suspected to belong to Artamonoff. The images have been grouped by their parent repository and then by site or building. They can be browsed individually, by site, or by descriptive keywords (tags). The website also includes information about the project and a short biography of the photographer.
