Reader's Advisory:

The University of Notre Dame recently announced the acquisition of the Léon Krier Library and Archives. This important resource will become part of the University's permanent research collection and serve as the cornerstone for a research center devoted to the study of classical and traditional architecture and urbanism. The Krier Library, comprising nearly 8,000 volumes, will become a permanent research collection in Notre Dame's Architecture Library. His archives span his over 40-year career and are composed of several thousand architectural drawings, personal and professional correspondence, and the studies for his many publications. The majority of his original work will be digitized and made available through a unique website. Once cataloged, the collection will be available to students and scholars worldwide.

Online Reference Work

Phaidon Atlas: Architecture for Architects (www.PhaidonAtlas.com), will soon be available for purchase. This online resource will focus on contemporary architecture, spotlighting thousands of projects built in the 21st century. The Phaidon Atlas will offer users an in-depth and wide-ranging record of world architecture. Selected by specialists based across the globe this digital directory includes 3000+ buildings (featuring 130,000+ stunning drawings and images) from over 115 countries. Each building is presented through photographs, drawings and designs – many materials that cannot be accessed anywhere else - and demonstrates the design process of some of the world's leading architects such as Foster and Partners, Daniel Libeskind, Richard Meier, Zaha Hadid Architects, MVRDV, BIG - Bjarke Ingels, Peter Eisenman, Steven Holl, Mass Studies - Minsuk Cho, MK27 - Marcio Kogan, John Pawson, Dominique Perrault, and SO-IL. This new digital product is a development from the Phaidon Atlas book series that includes the Phaidon Atlas of Contemporary World Architecture (2004) and the Phaidon Atlas of 21st Century Architecture [2008]. Phaidon Atlas is designed to evolve as a growing online community to help build a global network for architects to communicate and share ideas. Subscription fees start at $240 per year for 1 user up to $1230 per year for 10 users.
