Architectural History Online: Is it Different?

1:15 – 2:45 p.m.

Room: 107 – lower level

Abby Smith Rumsey, Moderator

Panelists: Maartin Delbeke, Marc Leveu, Nancy Levinson, Patricia Morton

Four prominent editors share their perspective on the current state and future of architectural history publishing, particularly as regards to digital media, from moving an established publication online to creating a born-digital journal. Be sure to check the SAH conference mobile guide and website for updates and additional information. How do new media affect the scholarly argument, its presentation, and its reception? Does online publication work better for some types of content than others?

Are audiences for architectural history different online? Are their expectations of how to interact with journal- or monograph-based scholarship different, and if so, how do publishers respond?

CASVA Reception (Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts)

Roundtable: Beyond the Lecture: Teaching Innovations

3:00 – 4:00 p.m.

Room: 204

Christy Anderson, Moderator

Repeated studies and practical experience has shown that the lecture is one of the least effective methods of teaching, yet it remains the dominant forms of faculty/student exchange especially in the large survey class. With the availability of digital resources for the study of architectural history, how have they affected the classroom? This roundtable aims to allow for an open discussion of some of the new techniques that we are using for teaching architectural history. The flipped classroom, online tools, and experiential learning all promise a more engaged student and better understanding of the material, yet what works best for the teaching of architectural history? Bring your beverage of choice.

Exhibits

The Exhibit Area will include university presses offering for review and sale of their latest books on architecture, architectural history, landscape architecture, landscape architectural history, urban planning, design, art and art history, plus much more. This is a good location to meet with friends and colleagues, drink your coffee, and discuss the presentations.

Book Publishing Roundtable

10:00 a.m. – 11:30 a.m.

Room 102-104 lower level

Moderator: Nancy Eklund, New York

As surely as scholarly research in architectural history has evolved during the Society's first 75 years, so too have the means and motives of its dissemination. Recent developments, however, within academia and the publishing industry, have left scholars and their traditional publishing partners if not at odds then arguable out of sync. This roundtable brings together representatives from the architectural press to identify recent changes to the book-publishing model and to openly discuss the opportunities as well as obstacles they present to potential authors. The conversation will address topics such as the fate of the scholarly monograph; the economics of print production and the role of subvention; sales considerations in the university press environment; the task of audience cultivation; literary standards for historical research; and the proliferation of new publishers and alternative venues for peer-reviewed scholarship within the evolving marketplace. Attendees are encouraged to come with questions and raise issues of broad concern. The goal is to demystify the current industry model(s) and re-align the expectations of press and author, so that together we can craft a more vibrant publishing culture around the built environment.

Friday Break

There is a 15-minute break between the end of Track 4 and the beginning of Track 5. Take this opportunity to visit the Exhibit Area, meet up with friends and colleagues to compare sessions and papers, check e-mail and voice mail, or get a beverage.

Toward a Global Architectural History

For decades architecture colleges have attended to the growing need to help students to adapt to international standards. Architectural historians have already noticed the challenge to elucidate students about the inter-connections of built environment production and design processes at the work level. But, despite the undoubted sophistication and importance of the new scholarship, most of the works continue to resolutely local or national or working in a western world perspective. One of the aims of this roundtable is to examine the utility of incorporation of a broader dimension to the analysis and study of the worldwide architecture phenomena to our narratives. One of the questions that will guide the discussion is: Which is the role for architectural historians in training students on the complexities of transnational experiences?

Cost: $20

This seminar is open to conference attendees and the public.

The 2016 Los Angeles Seminar bridges the Society's efforts in historic conservation to the contemporary built environment and the local public and professional community. The LA Seminar will critically look at SurveyLA, a $5 Million dollar, city-wide study of historic resources sponsored by the J. Paul Getty Trust and the City of Los Angeles. As described on-line, "SurveyLA – the Los Angeles Historic Resources Survey – is Los Angeles' first-ever comprehensive program to identify significant historic resources throughout our city. The survey marks a coming-of-age for Los Angeles' historic preservation movement, and will serve as a centerpiece for the City's first truly comprehensive preservation program."

The SAH Los Angeles Seminar will further situate the survey in relation to other historic resource inventories in general. What has this on-line globally-accessible project accomplished? What are its strengths and weaknesses for both Los Angeles and the world at large? What are its implications and practical applications for planning, the public and architectural historians? Can it serve as a model for other survey work? Where does it go from here?

The afternoon tour builds on the morning discussion to directly experience the surveyed neighborhoods, that through its easy access via Light Rail is undergoing rapid change—and underscores the need for dialogue among historians, architects, policy makers and the community at large.

VERTICAL URBAN FACTORY

VERTICAL URBAN FACTORY focuses on the spaces of production in cities—both in the modernist period and today—and the technologies that have contributed to shifts in factory architecture, manufacturing, and urban design. It provokes new concepts for the future of urban manufacturing, and the necessity of creating new paradigms for sustainable, self-sufficient urban industry.

Nina Rappaport is an architectural critic, curator, and educator. She is director of the Vertical Urban Factory, a think tank, which includes a traveling exhibition, research project, and this book.

At the time this program went to press not all tours were confirmed. Be sure to visit the website sah.org/2016 and the SAH conference mobile guide for updates and additional tours.

All of the guided tours on Saturday and Sunday will depart from the Pasadena Conference Center. Watch for the “Tours Meet Here” sign located on the lower level. Volunteers with signs will check you in and collect tickets before turning you over to the tour leader(s). Be sure you have your water bottle filled and your tour ticket before you get in line. If light rail is involved, be sure you have purchased your light rail pass before the day of the tour to avoid delays and to keep on schedule.

Times noted for each tour indicate the time the tour will depart from the conference center and the time the tour will return to the conference center.

Tours are not determined by the number of seats on the motor coach, but rather, by the maximum capacity the visited sites will accommodate, as well as to ensure the high-quality tour that our members have come to expect.

Please read the description of each tour carefully to determine the mobility level. If lunch is not listed, plan to eat on your own either before or after the tour. As SAH continues with its “green initiative” we will not be offering bottles of water. Instead we ask that you bring your favorite bottle/container and fill as needed.

Sian Winship, SAH/SCC, Tour Leader

The rural community of Bakersfield, north of Los Angeles, is home to little-known but highly regarded legacy of modern architecture. Interior site visits include the Davis Residence, (1937, Richard Neutra), the Leddy Residence (1958, Richard Neutra) the Ablin Residence (1958, Frank Lloyd Wright), the Sill Building (1937, Franklin Kump and Associates) and a visit to the Clarence Cullimore, FAIA Archive at CSUB for a look at the recently acquired papers of this important architect.

TR11      Office Park: Post-Industrial Orange County, 1970-1990

Daniel Paul, ICF International, Tour Leader

As Los Angeles was largely built out by 1965, South Orange County was a blank slate that developed into a telling, distinctive and diffuse post-industrial landscape; an “edge city” in of itself. Within this setting, Office Park will highlight various mirror glass and other Late-Modern architectural designs. Sites to be seen include Noguchi Gardens (Isamu Noguchi, 1982) the former Fluor headquarters (Welton Becket & Associates, 1973), the Newport Gateway office tower dyad (A.C. Martin & Associates, 1987 and 1990), Koll Center Newport (Langdon & Wilson, 1973-1983), and the former Crystal Cathedral campus; now Christ Cathedral (Johnson/Burgee, Richard Neutra, Richard Meier, et al. 1961-2003). Multiple buildings en route will be identified and discussed.

TR12 Beyond the “Pasadena Style”: Regional Modernism in Southern California

Debi Howell-Ardila, South Pasadena Cultural Heritage Commission and Barbara Lamprecht, Lamprecht Architectural, Tour Leaders

The focus will be on buildings and landscapes reflecting the varied expressions of regional modernism in Pasadena. Since its postwar heyday, Southern California's regional modernism is often interpreted through an exceptionalist lens, through which key design principles (such as site-specific design and indoor-outdoor integration) are understood and presented as unique to Southern California. This interpretation misses the broader context for regional modernism, as architects throughout the United States began exploring middle ground between a history-free design and design inflecting regional precedent and identity.

Sites to be visited include Frank House and Thompson House (1957 and 1959, Buff, Straub and Hensman), Vultee Aircraft Model Home (1947), Whitney Smith House (1936-1962), Community Facilities Planners office (1958), Thornton Ladd Residence and Studio (1949-1950), among others.

Go to SAH.org/2016. Be sure to include your name and institutional affiliation or city as they should appear on your conference badge. Registrations will not be accepted over the phone. Your address used must match the credit card billing address to avoid delays in the registration confirmation.

If you will be paying by check, (no wire transfers) please note that your registration will be processed only after the payment has been received in the SAH office. Payments by check should be mailed to: SAH 69th Annual International Conference, Society of Architectural Historians, 1365 N. Astor St., Chicago, IL 60610-2144. For assistance, please call 312.573.1365.

Registration Confirmation

A registration confirmation will be e-mailed to the address indicated on the registration form.

Non-member fees noted on the worksheet and the online registration form include both your conference registration and a one-year electronic membership to SAH.

Tour Selection

Tours may be selected during the general registration process beginning on December 8, 2015. Updates will be posted to the website and conference mobile app. SAH Members are urged to register as early as possible to reserve space on their preferred tour(s). When selecting a tour, have an alternate choice ready in case all the spots are filled on your first tour choice.

Exhibits

SAH will have an Exhibit Area during the 2016 Annual International Conference showcasing publishers that are of interest to our concentrated audience. Please visit the Exhibit Area, where you can peruse and purchase the latest publications. It is also an ideal place to meet with friends and colleagues over coffee and conversation.

Support for SAH Annual Conference Fellowships/Travel Awards

For graduate students, international speakers, and independent scholars presenting at the SAH Annual International Conference, the availability of travel awards helps to ensure participation in the conference. The awards are made possible by the generous support of SAH members and the endowments of the named donors. Much-needed contributions to the funds may be made on the SAH website. Donations given at this time will be used to support travel to the 2016 Annual International Conference in Pasadena. Thank you in advance for your contribution. Each year, SAH awards approximately $25,000 in Conference Fellowships. Each Annual Conference Fellowship award is up to $1,000 and is a reimbursable stipend to be used to offset costs of conference registration and travel, lodging, and meals directly related to the conference.

SAH.org/fellowships for a list and details.

The Society of Architectural Historians is a registered provider with the American Institute of Architects Continuing Education System (AIACES) to provide learning units for participation in various events at the Annual Conference, which include the, paper sessions, tours, and SAH Los Angeles Seminar. To receive the correct number of learning units for your transcript, please provide your AIA member number on the conference registration form. Upon check-in at the conference, you will be given a form to be completed and returned to the SAH Check-In/Information Desk at the conclusion of the Annual Conference.
