Reader's Advisory

Mount Ida Press has just reprinted Harley J. McKee's classic Introduction to Early American Masonry. Harley McKee's papers are housed at Syracuse University, and he was the first historian to use local examples when discussing American architectural styles. He compiled the first local field guide, entitled Architecture Worth Saving in Onondaga County. A founding member of the Association for Preservation Technology, McKee also wrote a manual on how to record historic buildings.
