

12:03:57 From Anthony Brand to Everyone: Good morning everyone :)

12:04:30 From Shundana Yusaf to Everyone: Hi all, I am joining from Salt Lake City. Hello to friends, Sabine, Pam, Anne M and others

12:08:51 From Dima Almobarak to Everyone: Good evening everyone, I'm Dima joining from Bahrain. Thank you Pam and Sara :)

12:09:15 From Anne Marshall to Everyone: I teach architectural design, architectural history, and Indigenous architecture at university of Idaho. Greetings to speakers and Shundana and all!

12:14:23 From Darko Kahle to Everyone: Good evening to everyone, I am Darko from Essen, Germany. I am currently writing about the history of Modern Architecture of my hometown Zagreb, which also includes preservation of architectural heritage from that period.

12:22:27 From Pam Jordan to Everyone: This is an amazing image of a man in a box

12:26:38 From Pam Jordan to Everyone: here is a link to the World Soundscape Project Sabine referenced: <https://www.sfu.ca/~truax/wsp.html>

13:23:05 From Arijit Sen to Everyone: Thank you for an awesome program. It was one of the best SAH virtual roundtable that I have attended. I have to leave, but wanted to tell you how much I appreciated this conversation.

13:24:08 From Pam Jordan to Everyone: Everyone please feel free to offer a comment or question

13:29:23 From Ryan Lash to Everyone: I wonder if Emma's point about the diversity of experience in the past may actually help us deal with the "Lemon Problem." That is, authentic experience was a problem for people in the past as well. I expect temples and shrines didn't always generate the atmosphere and enchantment that their creators intended. Experience in the past was variable, and I think our best bet is to try to gauge something of the range of possibilities and the elements that created them.

13:31:28 From Anthony Brand to Everyone: I think that's a recognition of Lemonades - that there are different types of Lemons

13:31:38 From Ryan Lash to Everyone: Ha, true!

13:32:01 From Anne Marshall to Everyone: As Emma-Jayne spoke about cleaning up after sacrifices my brain immediately brought forth a memory of smelling blood from a sacrifice at a temple. The senses are indeed integrated. Thank you all for an interesting roundtable.

13:32:32 From Ryan Lash to Everyone: Thanks very much to Sara and Pam!

13:32:33 From Patricia Morton to Everyone: Thank you for this great discussion!

13:32:45 From Ivan Pashov to Everyone: Thank you for an interesting seminar.

13:32:47 From Ivan Pashov to Everyone: 😊

13:32:52 From Gretchen Boyce to Everyone: thank you!

13:32:55 From Anthony Brand to Everyone: Thank you for having me. happy to continue the discussion: Anthony.brand@auckland.ac.nz